"Production has been as good this year as it was last year, but prices have been terrible, said Dave professor of Burrage, marine resources with the State Mississippi Extension University

Service in Biloxi. Burrage said yields are good because of dry weather early in the year. Young shrimp grow in the marshes and tributaries of rivers along the Coast. Without much rain, the salinity, or salt level, in these nurseries rises, allowing shrimp to move further inland.

"This gives the shrimp more marsh 'area to feed and whide in, and with warmer-than-normal temperatures, the shrimp grew quickly," Burrage said.

Despite production that matched last year's aboveaverage yields, shrimpers are hurting this year because of poor prices. Prices for most shrimp last year were from $1.70 to $2 per pound, but this year range from $1.35 to $1.75 a pound. "Shrimp is typically a luxury item consumed in restaurants and not a staple people pick up at the grocery store," Burrage said. "Since Sept. 11, people haven't been traveling and eating out as much. The consumption in this country has gone down." Compounding the reduced consumption are imports. Burrage although the Gulf produces 80 to 85 percent of the nation's shrimp harvest, the country imports 80 percent

Citizens of Hancock, Harrison and Pearl River Counties Patients of Gulf South Urgent Care

Re: Change in Clinic Operating Hours

Dear Citizens and Patients:

Gulf South Urgent Care was opened in September, 1996 with a mission and goal of providing quickly accessible, reasonably priced medical care for minor illnesses and injuries every day of the year. Since inception, we have largely been able to achieve this goal.

Dr. David Romine has worked with us for the past year and has been well received by the community, performing his duties with skill and compassion. Prior to his coming to Bay St. Louis, Dr. Romine served his country both as a Flight Officer in the U.S. Navy and as a Family Physician with the National Health Service Corps in the Mississippi Delta. Effective July 1, 2002, Dr. Romine will re-enter active military service in order to care for service members and their families and to further his medical training in areas of special interest to him. I will personally miss Dr. Romine, as will the staff of Gulf South Urgent Care.

As you may know, the medical profession in Mississippi has dramatically changed, due in part to the reluctance of physicians to expose themselves to the risk of the rapidly escalating cost of liability insurance. Even the U.S. Chamber of Commerce issued a nationwide warning about doing business in Mississippi due the litigation climate here. The 300-400% increases in insurance premiums for the medical profession over the past year are real. The certainty of next year's significant premium increases are also real. Meanwhile, health insurance companies, to preserve profits, are not increasing payment rates to medical providers in proportion to the insurance premium increases. I also cannot in good conscience increase fees to the uninsured patients in order to cover the additional cost of medical liability insurance.

I have made the personally difficult decision to convert to an extended hours practice and maintain weekday hours only. Effective July 1, 2002, Gulf South Urgent Care will be open from 10:00 am to 8:00 pm, Monday through Friday, and will close for major holidays. Should you require care on weekends, holidays or after hours, you should contact your personal physician or seek care at an Emergency Department.

Nothing would please me more than being able, at some point in the future, to return to our original mission and provide medical care each day of the year. It is past time to point blame at lawyers or insurance companies or medical providers. There is enough blame to go around. It is time, however, for our State Legislature to take meaningful steps to improve our Tort system. Access to medical specialists in parts of Mississippi has already been limited or eliminated entirely. Primary care physicians are retiring prematurely and recruiting physicians to Mississippi has become even more difficult due to the current litigious climate. Please contact your local State representatives and Senators and express your concerns. Ask them to support tort reform or vote for candidates who say they will make the changes.

Sincerely with great humility,

Joseph G. Stribling, M.D.

Letters to the Editor

Cockfighting brutality continues to flourish

To the Editor:

Two men were recently arrested in Saucier with fighting birds in their possession, claiming they were headed to a Louisiana cockfight.

However, Mississippi's weak cockfighting law preventing police for charging the men for their involvement in this gruesome

Although cockfighting in which two birds are drugged with stimulants, strapped with razors, and set in a pit to hack each other to death for amusement and gambling - is illegal in Mississippi, the state law is among the weakest. Not only is the state one of a a minority that does not prohibit possessing birds for the purpose of fighting, but even those caught in the act of cockfighting are subject to a mere misdemeanor with a maximum fine of $100.

With law enforcement officers left at such a disadvantage, arrests for cockfighting in Mississippi are extremely rare, and this form of brutality continues to flourish,

Fortunately, police were able to charge the two men with possession of narcotics. This is hardly surprising: Cockfighting is not only a barbaric form of animal cruelty, but also a common venue for other criminal activity. Law enforcement officials nationwide have documented the strong connection between cockfighting and other criminal activities, including the large-scale manufacture and distribution of illegal drugs, illegal gambling, and even homicides.

Indeed, earlier this year, a man was stabbed repeatedly in an argument during a cockfight in St. Tammany Parish.

The federal government recently passed a ban on taking birds to out-of-state cockfights. When the ban takes affect next year, Mississippi cockfighters, like the two men arrested, will have no excuse for possessing fighting birds.

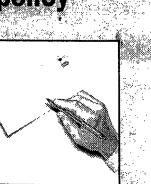

Mississippi's legislature should follow up by strengthening its own cockfighting law, and giving law enforcement the ability to protect the state from the criminality and cruelty of this reprehensible form of entertainment.

Minor -- funeral lawsuit

ation by another NAFTA country, was the first instance of the U.S. being sued under the celebrated trade agreement. (Several have been filed since, however.)

In effect, Canada's Loewen is using the umbrella of NAFTA to be compensated for what it claims were its business losses in the late 1990s as a result of alleged "abuse" by Mississippi's court system. Actually, Loewen is seeking a heck of a lot more money than ever involved in the Mississippi litigation.

All of this goes back to a $500 million jury award (later reduced to $150 million) O'Keefe's Gulf National Life Insurance and Bradford-O'Keefe Funeral homes won against the Loewen Group in Hinds County Circuit court in 1996. O'Keefe's suit arose from Loewen's acquisition of Wright & Ferguson Funeral Home in Jackson in 1992.

For nearly 10 years before Wright & Ferguson sold its funeral business to Loewen, O'Keefe had had a contract with the Jackson funeral home granting him exclusive rights to conduct the company's burial insurance business.

After several years unsuccessfully attempting to get Loewen to recognize his insurance contract with Wright & Ferguson, O'Keefe sued in Hinds Circuit Court for unspecified damages.

When Loewen refused to engage in pre-trial settlement discussions sought by then-Circuit Court Judge James Graves, a trial jury brought back an award of $500 million in compensatory and punitive damages. Graves later reduced it to $150 million.

Now in its lawsuit under NAFTA, Loewen is contending that because the Mississippi Supreme Court refused to waive its rule requiring posting bond of 125 per cent of the jury award during appeals, it was "forced" to settle the case for $150 million.

The jury award and the state Supreme Court's action amounted to expropriating the company's property, Loewen now contends.

While Chapter 11 of NAFTA regulating investorstate disputes was intended to prevent outright confiscation of a foreign company's property within a fellow trade agreement nation, some U.S. critics such as Public Citizen, the national non-profit watchdog organization, are outraged by Loewen's lawsuit. In effect, says Public Citizen, the Loewen Group is using NAFTA's, investor protections "in effect to 'reverse' a Mississippi jury's ruling."

The citizen organization the 1999 Monza 626, and a check revealed it had been stolen from Coventry, Conn. by four juveniles."

The girl, who was driving the vehicle Tuesday morning, would not reveal the whereabouts of the four runaways. She was swiftly sent to the Forest County Detention Center, Hurt reported.

The mother, who also had an outstanding warrant from the City of Waveland for contempt of court, was jailed Tuesday morning with no bond and awaiting an initial hearing because of her attack on the deputy.

Garber said.

An all-out search is taking place for the four runaways from Connecticut, three age 15 and the other age 16, two boys and two girls. Hurt who contacted Coventry, Conn. authorities said, "The vehicle belonged to one of the runaway girl's mother. The girl, as well as her three companions had left notes to their parents saying they were leaving home.

One of the 15-year-old boys was a former resident of Hancock County.

Hurt reported he and Deputy Gilkerson were inside the office at the jail with the young girl and were discussing the case when the mother arrived. She was cursing and raising a commotion outside, wanting her daughter to be released, they said.

"We went outside to tell her we were talking to each other and not her daughter, and she attacked Gilkerson with both hands around his neck, digging her fingernails in," Hurt added.

Hurt also reported, in addition to speaking to law enforcement in Coventry, he had also spoken to one of the runaway's mother.

Coast Guard modernization means additional local jobs

The United States Coast Guard has awarded Integrated Coast Guard Systems (ICGS) a contract to carry out a far-reaching modernization program for the agency's Deepwater forces -- the ships, aircraft, command and control, and logistics systems that protect the United States and support the Coast Guard's many missions. The contract was announced in a ceremony held Washington, D.C.

ICGS -- a co-equal partnership of Northrop Corporation Grumman (NYSE: NOC) and Lockheed Martin Corporation (NYSE: LMT) -- was awarded a contract valued at $11 billion to modernize the \mathbf{Coast} Guard's Deepwater assets over a 20-year period. The program's total potential value over three decades is estimated at approximately $17 billion.

Deepwater is the largest recapitalization effort in the history of the Coast Guard and will involve the acquisition of up to 91 ships, 35 fixed-wing aircraft, 34 helicopters, 76 unmanned surveillance aircraft, and upgrade of 49 existing cutters and 93 helicopters, in addition to systems for communications, surveillance and command and control.

"This is the first major building program for the U.S. Coast Guard in almost 40 years," U.S. Rep. Gene Guard -- the National Taylor said. "The ships built Security Cutter (NSC). for the Coast Guard as part a historic moment that is mission-designed, fully intevery important to the security of the American people. I congratulate Northrop Grumann for being part of Northrop Grumman and the winning team. Lockheed Martin, ICGS has Combined with Northrop the full commitment and Grumman's recent $2.87 billion contract for the lead both corporations to ensure ship of the DD (X) class of warships, this is more great for Northrop Grumman, Ingalls Shipbuilding, \mathbf{South} Mississippi and the nation."

America faces unprecedented terrorist threats and major challenges in the arena of illegal drug-interdiction, illegal immigration and a host of other threats to our borders, there is no doubt that the U.S. Coast Guard's role is becoming even more important and diversified in America's national security strategy," U.S. Senator Trent Lott said

"These ships will give the men and women of our Coast Guard a much needed new tool to meet the challenges ahead, and I am most confident that the employees of Northrop Grumman Ship Systems in Mississippi will provide the Coast Guard with a high-quality, cost-efficient, and long-serving vessel to fulfill this expanding mission."

ICGS will manage over 100 companies from 32 states, as well as four international teammates, to implement its comprehen- solutions provider and intesive plan for the Coast Guard. ICGS has structured a program that will greatly enhance the Coast Guard's core system capability within the first five years of the contract, and ensure a lowrisk transition to the full vision of the Deepwater system. In the first five years, ICGS will:

· -- Provide a network centric capability of robust C4ISR (Command, Control, Communications, Computers, Intelligence, Surveillance, Reconnaissance) resources on new and existing air, land and sea assets. -- Upgrade older assets until new ships, aircraft and systems are fielded.

-- Provide more capable systems with greater speed, longer endurance, and better onboard working spaces, all with a common integrated support infrastructure that will significantly lower operating costs.

Annual Drinking Water Quality Report City of Waveland PWS ID # 0230002 May 20, 2002

We're pleased to present to you this year's Annual Quality Water Report. This report is designed to inform you about the quality water and services we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our water resources. We are committed to ensuring the quality of your water. Our water source is groundwater, and our wells draw from the Graham Ferry and Pascagoula Formations. The source water assessment report has yet to be completed for this system. When it is completed it will be available for public review.

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Ray Eaton or Dwight Haskell at (228) 467 - 9248. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. If you want to learn more, please attend the any of our regular meetings held at 6:30 P.M. on the first Tuesday and third Wednesday of each month at the city annex building..

The City of Waveland routinely monitors for constituents in your drinking water according to Federal and State laws. This table shows the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1st to December 31st, 2001. In cases where monitoring wasn't required in 2001, the table reflects the most recent results. As water travels over the land or underground, it can pick up substances or contaminants such as microbes, inorganic and organic chemicals, and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some constituents. It's important to remember that the presence of these constituents does not necessarily pose a health risk.

In this table you may find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - picocuries per liter is a measure of the radioactivity in water.

Action Level - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.

Treatment Technique (TT) - A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Maximum Contaminant Level - The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - The "Goal" (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

Contaminant	Violation Y/N	Date Collected	Level Detected	Range of Detects or # of Samples Exceeding MCL/ACL	Unit Measurement	MCLG	MCL	Likely Source of Contamination

17. Lead	N		3	0	ppb	0	AL=15	Corrosion of household plumbing systems, erosion of natural deposits

* No samples were required in 2001

All sources of drinking water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man made. These substances can be microbes, inorganic or organic chemicals and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immunocompromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Please call our office if you have questions.

We ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources, which are the heart of our community, our way of life and our children's future.

As cattle producers we sometimes assume a different role: that of grass farmers. Cost effective forage production as it applies to beef cattle nutrition is a factor of two steps.

1) Providing the appropriate nutrients to feed the plant to optimize its growth and 2) feeding that plant to the animal to optimize the animal's growth.

Let's start with soils. Soil testing and analysis provides us with a picture of the nutrients available in the soil.

A soil test also measures soil pH, humus or organic matter and exchangeable acidity. It gives us a picture of what the current status of forage nutrient density is and can help the producer improve future crop management if present forage is of unsatisfactory quality.

Why Should a Producer Soil Test?

* To optimize crop production.

* To improve the soil's nutritional balance. A soil test can be a valuable tool in assessing and preventing horticultural, agronomic, and some environmental problems. The tests listed above do not identify plant growth problems associated with soil drainage, insects, plant diseases (whether soil-borne or not), weeds, winter injury and the misuse of pesticides.

How to Take a Soil Sample

In many states, soil tests, such as those conducted in the soil testing laboratories in many land grant universities, will help you to develop and maintain a more productive soil and to increase net returns per acre by providing information an the available nutrient content and fertility status of the

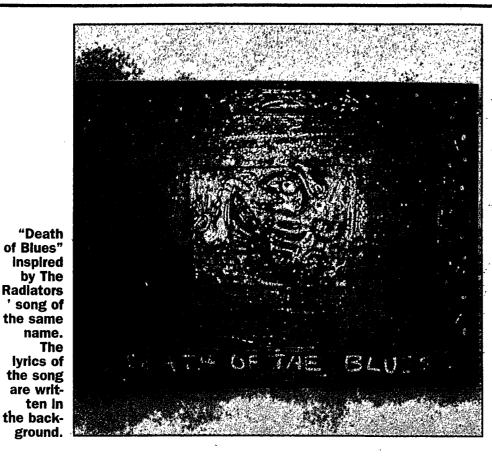

Remember, a soil sample weighing approximately 1/2 pound is used to represent from 2 to 40 million pounds of soil in the field.

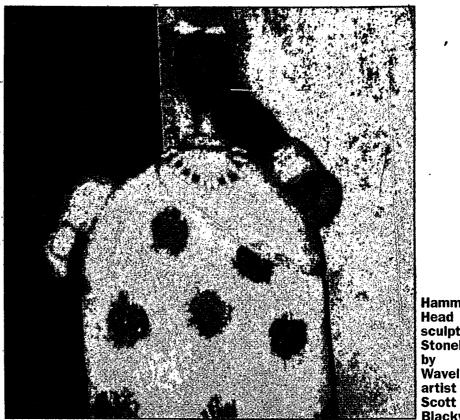

1) Each soil sample should represent only one soil type or soil condition.

Sample different soil types separately. Areas producing different forages or areas with different management histories should be sampled separately.

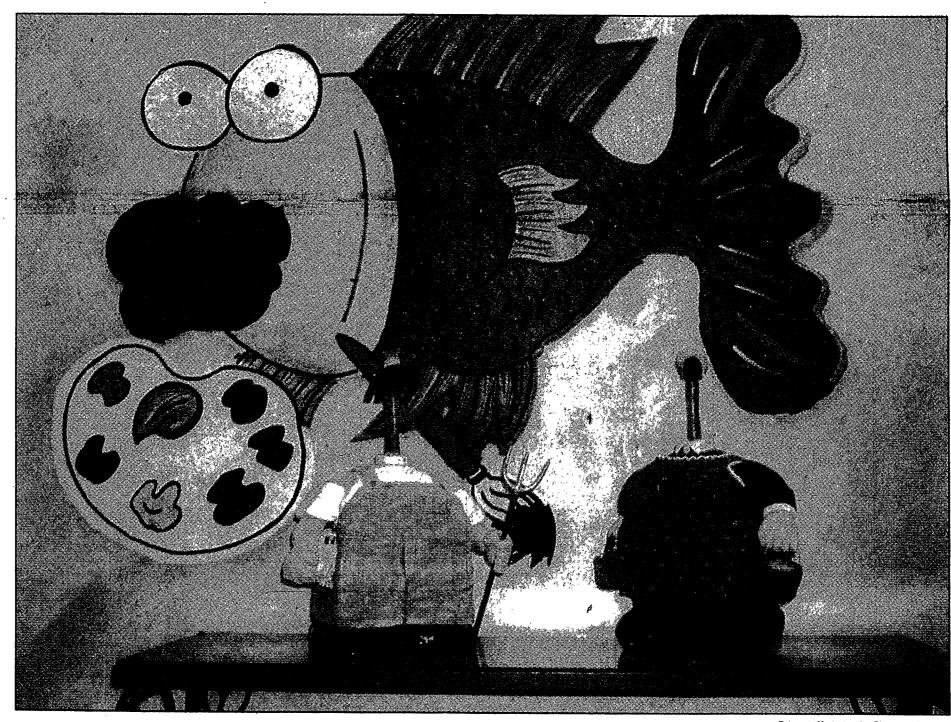

For example, a separate sample should be taken from each of the four following sampling areas: forage on poorly drained soil, forage on well-drained soil, wheat on well-drained val-

Hammer Head sculpture Stonehead Waveland artist

Waveland artist Scott Blackwell, a Florida native, has made a cottage industry from his whimsical paintings and sculptures of fish and his series of "Hammer Head" Sculptures, such as "American Gothic," shown above.

encounter with Blackwell's artwork occurred during trip Rickey's Bar &

While waiting for a table, I saw it - "The Chicken Drop." There was something about this painting of a wild-looking chicken that entranced me. It was more than just the bold creativity of it; there was something else that appealed to me.

A few weeks later I stumbled into Blackwell's art studio on out of here!" Coleman Avenue. I studied the Thus, she renamed Serenity colorful pieces of bug-eyed fish and other creatures that lined the walls, and, forgive the pun, I was hooked.

My roommate's 3-year-old daughter, however, had a totally different first impression of Blackwell's work. In a noble attempt to expose her to the area's culture, I brought her to Serenity Gallery during Second Saturday. As I carried her through the gallery, we came upon a large painting of his signature fish. At first glance, she buried her face into my chest, landed a tiny fist into my arm and venomously rasped, "Get me the "Fish Gallery" and forbid me to take her there again. Despite her wishes, we've visited the "Fish Gallery" several times since then and she has slowly warmed up to Blackwell's fish. I recently took the opportunity to speak with Blackwell about his work and to inform him of his influence on a certain 3-year-old.

It was during this conversation that I discovered why his work had appealed to me several months earlier. As he explained his unique style of artwork, Blackwell compared his work to Gary Larson's characters from "Farside." Since I'm a big fan of Larson's cartoons, it was no wonder why I found Blackwell's work so appealing.

"I call myself a contemporary humorist," Blackwell said.

His humor is evident with his Hammer Head sculptures and his "Chicken Drop" and "Cow Patty Drop" paintings. I'll assume there's no need to explain

USM faces budget shortfall in next fiscal year

In a third year of funding reductions, the University of Southern Mississippi will reduce academic budgets by more than $3.1 million or 5.5 percent, according to Vice President for Business and Finance Linda McFall.

She said academic budgets will be reduced by $3,160,691 in the new fiscal vear that starts July 1 and non-academic areas have seen budget reductions of $1,980,536.

The university will reduce its staff in clerical, service, auxiliaries and administration by 18 job slots in order to meet the +educed budget.

On the academic side, approximately 19 vacant tenure-track faculty positions have been removed from the budget for the immediate future.

McFall said general-fund appropriations for the Hattiesburg and Gulf Coast campuses specifically were reduced by $3,470,865 for fiscal year 2003. Additional shortfalls are attributed to a $2.4 million increase in utilties and other fixed costs; a loss of $1.5 million in onetime designated funds; and . investment income reducions related to the declining interest rates.

$5,378,146 for USM Gulf Coast next year compared to $5,584,912 this year. The budget reductions total $3,470,865 or nearly $3.5 million.

The new budget also includes direct line appropriations of $3,290,431 for the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory at Ocean Springs; $477,791 for the Hattiesburg-based Mississippi Polymer Institute; and $440,292 for the Center of Higher Learning at Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

State appropriations account for 54.8 percent of the operating budget for the Hattiesburg campus while the operating budget for USM Gulf Coast receives 48.6 percent in state appropriations. A one-time budget contingency or "bridge" allocation pulled together by the Legislature helped ease the strain budget Mississippi's eight universities for FY 2003.

Southern Miss's "total operating budget is in excess of $250 million. The overall budget includes some $57.8 million generated by USM auxiliary servictuition and fees, and more than $60 million in external awards for research and scholarly activities.

The university suffered two mid-year budget cuts of more than $3.9 million this fiscal year -- including $2,281,596 last November and $1,123,770 in February -- and never received another $546,518 in anticipated Education Enhancement monies. -

Faculty and staff are going into a third year without pay raises, although a 2 percent across-the-board hike was built into the 2003 budget to take effect in January, 2003. The budget also includes money for faculty and staff promotions.

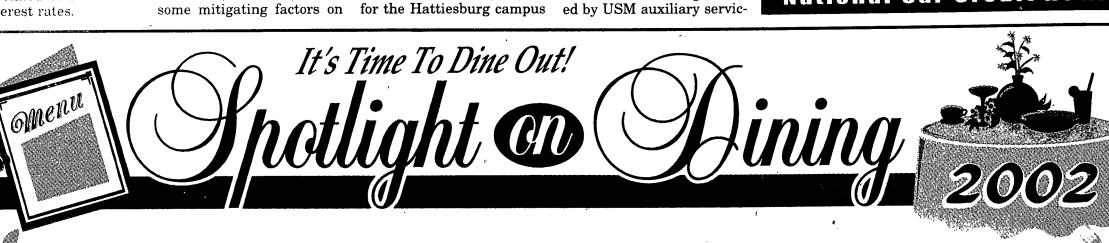

While faculty and staff positions have declined, the university enrollment has steadily increased -- topping 15,000 for the first time-compared to $68,290,773 at es, more than $56.5 million ever on all campuses last the start of this year; and generated by student fall. The university's square footage of facilities also has increased by 172,000 feet since 2000, although the number of maintenance personnel has declined since

State-appropriated funding for the eight universities has been sliced by $100 million over the past two years. Mississippi's 5.5 percent budget cut for higher education last year was more than double the average cut for the Southeast and five times the national average. according to a report from the Atlanta-based Southern Regional Education Board.

2) A good soil sample should represent the area. Each sample should consist of sub-samples taken from 10 to 15 locations within the sampling area. 3) Take soil sample to the correct depth.

When deeper soil samples are required, remove them from the bottom of the holes from which you took the surface sample.

4) Avoid contaminating the sample.

Use clean sampling

Avoid contaminating the sample during mixing or packaging

*A small amount of fertilizer residue on tools or hands, for instance, can cause serious contamination of the soil sample.

Galvanized brass, or bronze sampling tools should not be used for soil samples where a soil test for micronutrients such as zinc is to be run.

6) The soil sample should be carefully mixed and packaged. Place soil sub-samples in a clean container and mix thoroughly. Fill the soil sample bag with the soil mixture and identify clearly on the bag as well as on a log sheet or map.

7) Mailing the soil sample Print the necessary information an the sample bag.

ley floor soil and wheat on Be sure to number each sample and keep a record on the fields sampled. Don't use a paper bag for soil sample. Most labs will provide you with a sample information sheet. Fill out information sheet and mail it at the same time the sample is mailed.

> How Often Should Soils be tested?

The initial soil test prior to seeding is particularly important.

For annual crops, the soil should be tested annually before planting. Soil testing well in advance of planting is important, particularly in the case of acid soils where liming is likely to be needed. Lime should be applied and mixed with the soil several months prior to seeding, since lime reacts slowly with the soil.

Forage Testing

Production of quality forages is not something that occurs overnight. It takes time and investments in soil sampling as discussed, fertilization and subsequent forage sampling.

One of the best investments you can make in a given year is to forage test and use a forage testing procedure that includes analydiscussed above.

ses for the fiber components It is helpful to test growing forages periodically to determine where they stand on nutrient content and digestibility indicators. A quick sampling procedure would include the following: If necessary, identify where the group stops and starts. Sample each cutting of hay shortly after it is baled. After each bale is probed, empty the sample into the cardboard box.

With your samples, send along a cover letter listing your name and address along with a list of the samples you are including and include for each sample the same data as written on the sample bag. This simply helps the lab keep track of your samples.

For more information on sampling, contact your local county agent at 228-467-5454.

Annual Drinking Water Quality Report for the year of 2001 Diamondhead Water & Sewer District Issued June 18, 2002

We are pleased to present to you this year's Annual Quality Water Report. This report is designed to inform and explain to you about the outstanding water and service we deliver to you every day. Our constant goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water. We want you to understand the efforts we make to continually improve the water treatment process and protect our resources.

Your water comes to you from deep, clean, clear wells nearly 1000 feet down in the Graham Ferry Formation of the Miocene Aquifer. This water is naturally crystal clear and of Artesia spring water quality.

We are pleased to report that our drinking water is clean and safe, and meets all federal and state requirements. This report shows our water quality and what it means.

If you have any questions about this report or concerning your water utility, please contact Warren Swanson at our main office (255-5813) or Doug McGraw at 255-5856. We want our valued customers to be informed about their water utility. If you want to learn more, please attend any of our regularly scheduled board meetings. They are held at 9am on the second Monday of each month at our main office on Park Ten Drive.

The Diamondhead Water & Sewer District routinely monitors for constituents in your drinking water according to Federal and State laws. The following table shows the results of our monitoring for the period of January 1st, 2001 to December 31st, 2001. As water travels over the land or underground, it can pick up substances or contaminants such as microbes, inorganic and organic chemicals, and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may be reasonably expected to contain at least small amounts of some constituents. It's important to remember that the presence of these constituents does not necessarily pose a health

In this table you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. To help you better understand these terms we've provided the following definitions:

Non-Detects (ND) - laboratory analysis indicates that the constituent is not present.

Parts per million (ppm) or Milligrams per liter (mg/l) - one part per million corresponds to one minute in two years or a single penny in $10,000.

Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter - one part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.

Parts per trillion (ppt) or Nanograms per liter (nanograms/l) - one part per trillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000,000.

Parts per quadrillion (ppq) or Picograms per liter (picograms/l) - one part per quadrillion corresponds to one minute in 2,000,000,000 years or one penny in $10,000,000,000,000.

Picocuries per liter (pCi/L) - picocuries per liter is a measure of the radioactivity in water.

Millirems per year (mrem/yr) - measure of radiation absorbed by the body.

level of a contaminant in drinking water.

Million Fibers per Liter (MFL) - million fibers per liter is a measure of the presence of asbestos fibers that are longer than 10 micrometers.

Nephelometric Turbidity Unit (NTU) - nephelometric turbidity unit is a measure of the clarity of water. Turbidity in excess of 5 NTU is just noticeable to the average person.

Action Level - the concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow. Treatment Technique (TT) - A treatment technique is a required process intended to reduce the Maximum Contaminant Level - The "Maximum Allowed" (MCL) is the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.

Maximum Contaminant Level Goal - The "Goal" (MCLG) is the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

As you can see by the table, our system had no violations. We're proud that your drinking water meets or exceeds all Federal and State requirements. We have learned through our monitoring and testing that some constituents have been detected. The EPA has determined that your water IS SAFE at these levels.

MCL's are set at very stringent levels. To understand the possible health effects described for many regulated constituents, a person would have to drink 2 liters of water every day at the MCL level for a lifetime to have a one-in-a-million chance of having the described health effect.

All sources of drinking-water are subject to potential contamination by substances that are naturally occurring or man made. These substances can be microbes, inorganic or organic chemicals and radioactive substances. All drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

In our continuing efforts to maintain a safe and dependable water supply it may be necessary to make improvements in your water system. The costs of these improvements may be reflected in the rate structure. Rate adjustments may be necessary in order to address these improvements.

Thank you for allowing us to continue providing your family with clean, quality water this year. In order to maintain a safe and dependable water supply we sometimes need to make improvements that will benefit all of our customers. These improvements are sometimes reflected as rate structure adjustments. Thank you for understanding.

Please call our office if you have questions.

We at the Diamondhead Water & Sewer District work around the clock to provide top quality water to every tap. We ask that all our customers help us protect our water sources, which are the heart of our community, our way of life and our children's future.

Regarding the forestry provisions in the bill, Cochran states, "This legislation provides $100 million for a newly created forestry program. The Forest Land Enhancement Program provides cost-share assistance to state foresters to encourage long term sustainability of private forest lands.

Cochran's efforts to reauthorize the Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP) and the Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP) also drew praise from the Mississippi Fish and Wildlife Foundation.

Fish Tales

Mac Cady, 8 years old, along with the help of his brother Charlie Cady, 12 years old, of Houston, Texas caught a 28" redfish Monday with their grandfather, Ray Stieffel nearby loaning corks, shrimp and anything else they demanded of him. Their grandfather was fishing too, but unfortunately caught only a few small croakers, and refused to be photographed with his catch. The fish was "allegedly" caught near the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club which is Stieffel's favorite new fishing spot, but he swears it was caught somewhere around DeLisie.

the latter, so I'll fill you in on the Hammer Head sculptures.

While working with his buddies one day in Florida, Blackwell and his friends began clowning around and the name calling soon commenced. Affectionate nicknames like "blockhead" were being thrown around, and with hammer in hand, Blackwell conceived the idea for his line of Hammer Head sculptures.

With a hammer for a head and a portly body made of hydrocal (a fixture similar to cement), the comic sculptures make for an excellent conversation

Blackwell said the Hammer Heads are mostly commission pieces. He has created everything from a "Brett Favre" for a football fan to a "Doctor" for the, next year. physician himself.

My personal favorites were Blackwell's "American Gothic" Hammer Heads.

With his Hammer Heads aside, I would say Blackwell is best known for his vivid paintings and sculptures of fish.

The Florida native said he started developing his "fish art" while living in a fish camp on Lake on just about everyone's Ponchartrain in Louisiana. It was when he moved to LaPlace, La., that Blackwell said he began developing as a New Orleans artist.

"My art got more whimsical as I progressed as an artist," he said.

Then Blackwell began developing a series of artwork based on jazz musicians. He would soon convert such legends as Billie Holiday and Louis Armstrong into fish and other animals.

One of his most recent jazz-inspired pieces is a painting entitled "Swamp Tour." This painting of a musical alligator in the swamp was based on jazz musician George Benson.

Blackwell's new project is a cookbook chock full of (you guessed it) fish dishes. He said friends and family will contribute their favorite fish recipes, and he will recreate the dish with one of his ever-popular paintings. He guarantees the fish "won't be just laying on a plate." He said the cookbook should be out sometime Blackwell's work can be found in five galleries in Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida. Alabama and Michigan, and he has 22 collectors around the world.

The reason for his popularity, I believe, is his whimsical approach to his work.

"The main thing is I like to have fun with my work," he said. "It will put a smile face.'

My 3-year-old art companion may be the exception — for now. I plan to one day dedicate a room of my entirely house Blackwell's work. She would be so pleased.

ability to locate objects in a virtual environment. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brou, he earlier received bachelor's degree in psychology at MSU.

Shields, a senior and the son of Dr. and Mrs. John Shields, completed a study related to Stroop Effect, a cognitive phenomenon (first described in 1935 by Tennessee psychologist J.R. .Stroop) that illustrates humans' ability to read words faster than they can name colors.

Harris, who graduated from MSU in May with a master's degree and begins study toward a doctorate in the fall, demonstrated how some individuals better comprehend directions for prescribed medications when receiving a "time of day" list for which the medicine is to be taken. He also holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Tennessee.
